

Assembly Areas and Westminster Parliamentary Constituencies in Northern Ireland

Introduction

1. Northern Ireland Assembly elections take place on 5th May 2011. Assembly Areas (AAs) for this election will, from this point in time, be re-aligned with Westminster Parliamentary Constituencies (WPCs) which will have an effect on the creation of official statistics in Northern Ireland. This guidance note explains the background to and the detail of the new boundaries.

Background

2. The Boundary Commission for Northern Ireland is one of four advisory non-departmental public bodies in the United Kingdom required by the Parliamentary Constituencies 1986 Act, as amended, to keep Parliamentary constituencies under continuous review and periodically (every 8 to 12 years) to conduct a General Review of the number, boundaries and names of all Parliamentary Constituencies, and make recommendations (see <http://www.boundarycommission.org.uk/>).
3. The commission's "Fifth Periodical Report on Parliamentary Constituencies" which outlined recommended changes to and the composition of constituencies was presented to Parliament in March 2008. These constituency boundaries were subsequently used for the first time during the 2010 General Election and based on their date of Parliamentary approval are referred to as WPC2008.
4. The NI Assembly elections of May 2011 (AA2011) will be contested using Assembly Areas whose boundaries are the same as these WPC2008 Parliamentary Constituency boundaries.

Explanation of the boundary changes

5. In practice the AA2011/WPC2008 boundaries are not very different to their predecessors (which were the 1992 Parliamentary Constituencies).
6. As before there are 18 constituencies, all retaining the same name. In the main, the boundary amendment process has simply involved the re-assigning of existing Electoral Wards (created in 1992) from one constituency into a neighbouring constituency.

7. For example, the following five wards within Castlereagh LGD: Ballyhanwood, Carrowreagh, Dundonald, Enler and Graham's Bridge have been moved across a boundary into Belfast East Borough Constituency from Strangford County Constituency.
8. The only exception to this type of re-assignment concerns Derryaghy ward within Lisburn City LGD which previously resided entirely within Lagan Valley County Constituency. For current boundary purposes it has been divided along the Derryaghy townland boundary to be represented as Derryaghy (North) and Derryaghy (South), the former now included in Belfast West Borough Constituency, the latter remaining where it was. Full lists of boundary changes are detailed in Annex A.
9. A map illustrating the changes between the 1992 Parliamentary Constituencies and the AA2011/WPC2008 boundaries is given in Annex B.
10. With a view to ensuring consistent future use of the new boundaries, the following points are noted:
 - NISRA Geography, in consultation with ONS, have created a definitive set of codes for the Westminster Parliamentary Constituencies (see Annex C), comprising part of a UK-wide coding. As such, the new Assembly Areas (AA2011) which are defined exactly by these boundaries will not have a coding of their own;
 - a detailed look-up table for both the 1992 and 2008 Westminster Parliamentary Constituencies is included in each Central Postcode Directory (CPD) produced;
 - The WPC2008 boundaries are disseminated by Land and Property Services (LPS) as part of the Northern Ireland Mapping Agreement (NIMA) products, and hence these boundaries can be used for AA2011 purposes.

Creating aggregated data at AA/WPC level

11. It is advisable to use the lowest available spatial reference to create data at WPC level. This section outlines the relationship between AA2011/WPC2008 boundaries and lower-level geographies:
 - Property level → WPC2008/AA2011

Property level data may be allocated within WPC2008 boundaries by using the POINTER database or the POINTER spatial reference directory. For further assistance contact Jamie Mill (Jamie.mill@dfpni.gov.uk).

See: <http://www.nisra.gov.uk/geography/PSRD.htm>

- Unit Postcode → WPC2008/AA2011

Unit postcode level data may be allocated within WPC2008 boundaries by way of the Central Postcode Directory (CPD). The current CPD was released in November 2010 and a new version of the CPD will be issued in May 2011.

See: <http://www.nisra.gov.uk/geography/postcode.htm>

- Census Output Area (COA2001) → WPC2008/AA2011

Output Area data may be assigned, based on a best-fit methodology, by way of the following table (also available in the COA2001 table within the CPD at the link given above):

Census Output Area to WPC2008/AA2011.xls

- Ward1992 → WPC2008/AA2011

Ward data may be assigned exactly (for 581 out of the 582 wards) by way of the following table (also available in the WARD1992 table within the CPD):

Ward to WPC2008/AA2011.xls

The remaining ward, Derryagh (95SS07), is split between 'N06000004 - BELFAST WEST' and 'N06000009 - LAGAN VALLEY'. The proportion is approximately 50% in each area.

WARD1992	WARD1992NAME	WPC2008	WPC2088_label	Split
95SS07	DERRYAGHY	N06000004	BELFAST WEST	50%
95SS07	DERRYAGHY	N06000009	LAGAN VALLEY	50%

- Local Government District (LGD1992) → WPC2008/AA2011

Only one WPC2008 (West Tyrone) is made up exactly from the amalgamation of whole LGDs (Omagh 95YY and Strabane 95ZZ). There is no simple look-up between LGD1992 and WPC2008/AA2011.

- Parliamentary Constituency 1992 (PARL1992/AA1998) → WPC2008/AA2011

Six of the WPC1992 (AA1998) constituencies remain unchanged as a result of the boundary amendments, as listed below:

Name	WPC2008/AA2011	PARL1992/AA1998
FERMANAGH AND SOUTH TYRONE	N06000007	9507

NORTH DOWN	N06000013	9513
UPPER BANN	N06000017	9517

The following table shows the differences, using the 2008 Small Area Population Estimates (SAPE) to adjust the constituencies' population estimates for the areas added/removed (See Annex A).
